

Trade, Not Politics, To Govern Policy Of U. S. in Russia

Position Taken by Wilson Regime To Be Maintained by Harding Until All An- gles Have Been Studied

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau.
WASHINGTON, March 19.—Future relations between the United States government and Russia will be based wholly on commercial grounds and not on political, it was disclosed to-day in a high quarter. The American State Department was represented as giving consideration to the trade agreement negotiated between Great Britain and the Russian Soviet government, but no indication was given as to when any change in the existing trade relations between the countries might be authorized.

It was pointed out that American exporters already were free to deal with Russian buyers at their own risk, and that some commercial deals were pending. The position of the Harding Administration, however, was said to be unchanged from that of the Wilson regime, and no radical change could be expected until the whole subject had been carefully studied from all angles. Officials read with interest to-day the report from Rival that, in addressing the Tenth Communist Congress, had dropped the plan for a world revolution, and that efforts of the Soviet regime hereafter would be directed toward trade agreements with the outside world. While confirmation of this new position by the Bolshevik leader was lacking, officials were inclined to believe that the Soviet authorities have about come to realize that a cessation of the drastic military rule of Russia was necessary before all nations would feel free to resume cordial relations.

The American State Department and the Department of Commerce are now endeavoring to give whatever aid is possible to American shippers in securing Russian markets by establishing consuls and trade advisers on Russian border states. These consular officials have authority to cooperate with American shippers in so far as possible, but distinct instructions have been dispatched to them to avoid dealing directly with the authorities or taking any step that might be construed as indicating political recognition of the Bolshevik regime. From these officials the Harding Administration will receive reports on trade problems upon which the future commercial relations between the two governments may be based.

Alabama May Buy Nine Counties From Florida

Movement Revived to Make the Apalachicola River New State Boundary

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 19.—Sale to the state of Alabama of that portion of western Florida lying west of the Apalachicola River, and including the nine counties of Bay, Calhoun, Escambia, Holmes, Jackson, Okaloosa, Santa Rosa, Walton and Washington, will be proposed to the Florida Legislature when it meets next month, it was disclosed to-day.

The sale has been discussed several years. The Alabama Legislature in 1919 passed an act providing for the annexation of the territory involved. The law authorized the appointment of a state boundary commission to act with a similar commission from Florida whenever the Florida Legislature passed a similar act.

The State of Alabama in its constitution, adopted in 1901, authorized bonds for the purchase of additional territory, having in mind, it is said, the acquisition of the Florida counties.

Detroit Police Bar Quotations Regarding Jews

Special Dispatch to The Tribune.
DETROIT, March 19.—Persons selling Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent on downtown streets have been warned by police to refrain from quoting its publication's reference to the Jews when selling their papers. Superintendent of Police William P. Rutledge to-day stated that many of the men have been shouting quotations from The Independent in such loud tones that Jewish citizens complained. He has threatened to arrest any person for disturbing the peace if the practice is not immediately stopped. Superintendent Rutledge, in commenting on the action of the St. Louis police in stopping the sale of The Independent, said that no such action would be taken here.
